Where we're going today...

Where Project 2 fits in the course

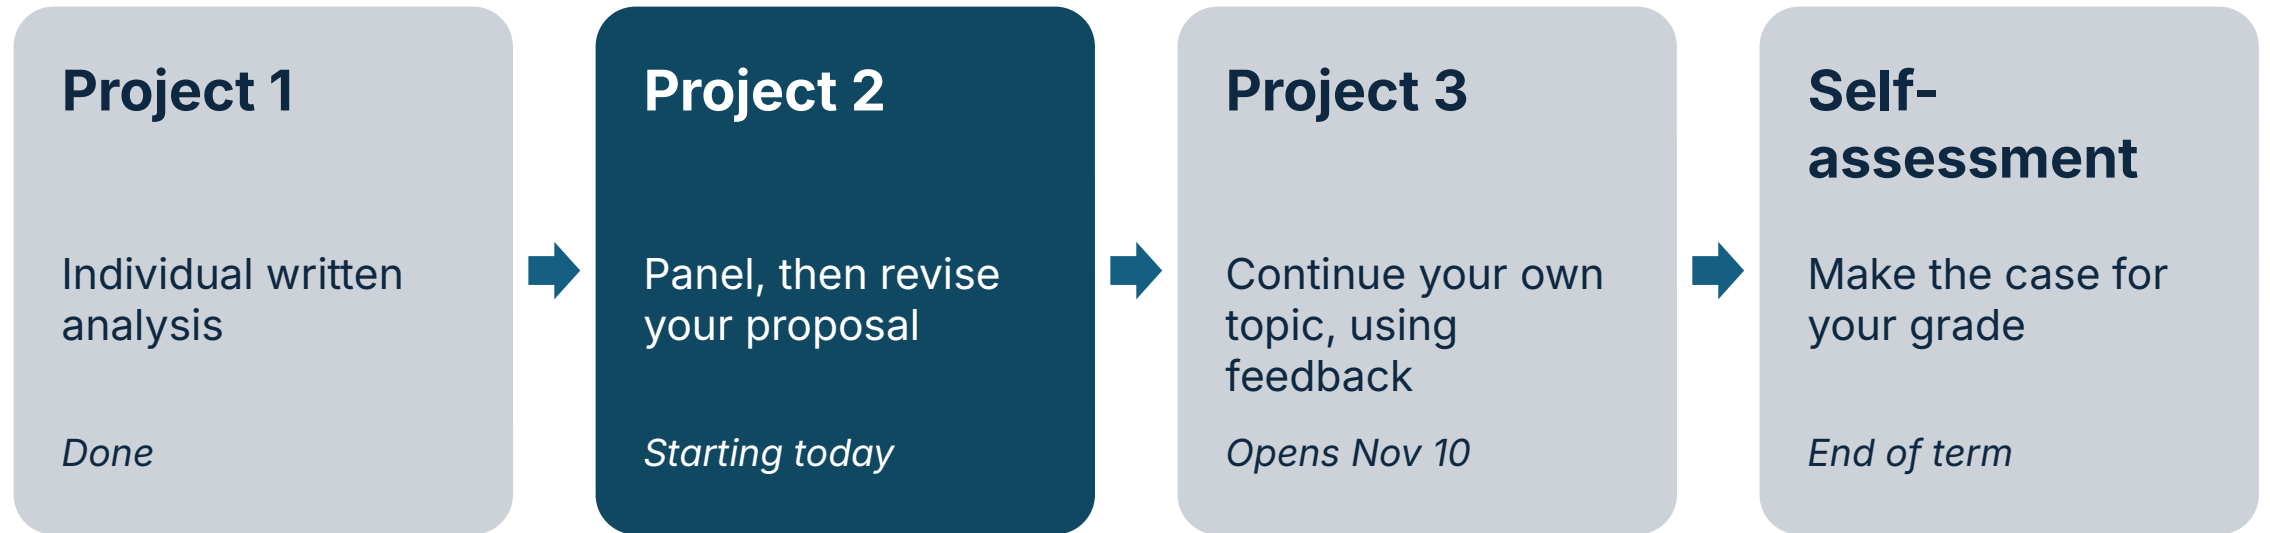

Panel structure and key dates

What Complete means, plus a quick practice

Where Project 2 fits

Your Project 2 topic carries into Project 3, so choose one you'll want to stay with.

How the panels work

10

panels

3

panelists on each panel

25

minutes per panel

Recorded privately on Oct 27, 28 or 29: just you, your co-panelists, and me. 5 minutes of questions for each panelist, then 10 minutes of open discussion. Recordings are posted to TRU Media.

What you'll do

Before and during your panel

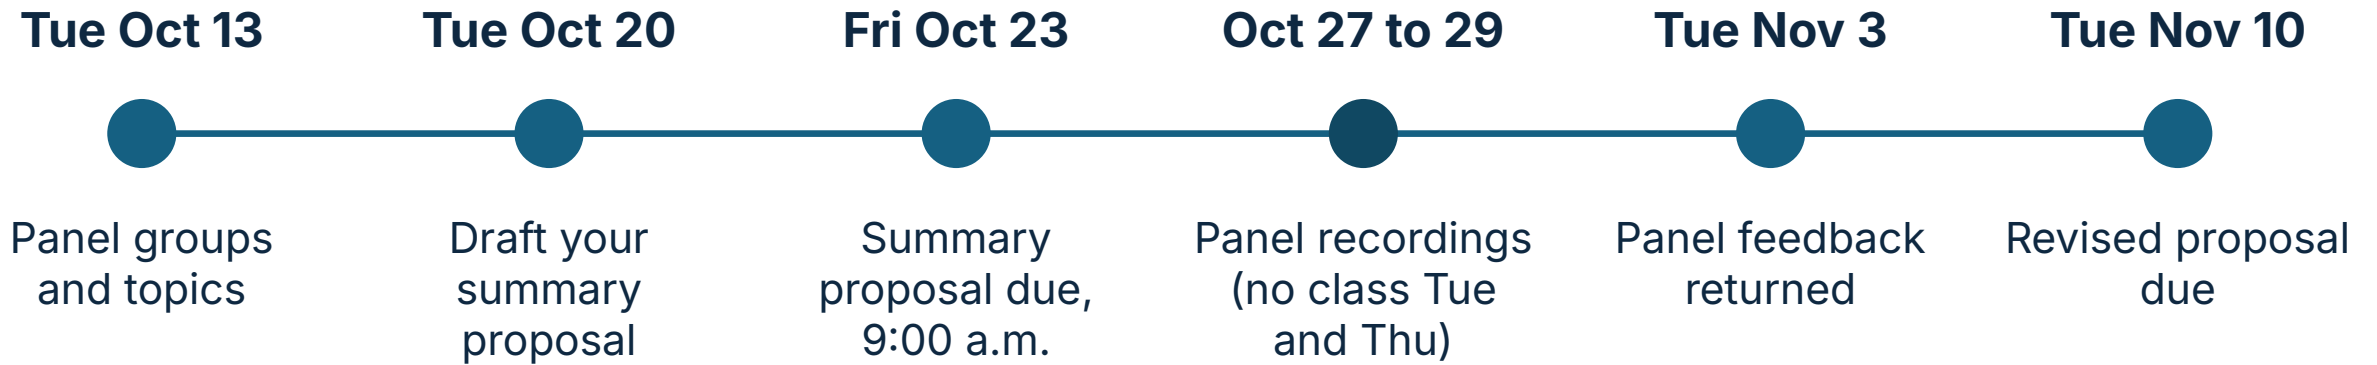

- Submit a 250-word summary proposal by Fri Oct 23, 9:00 a.m.
- Speak in a private, recorded panel on Oct 27, 28 or 29
- Engage with your co-panelists' ideas

After your panel

- Get my feedback on Tue Nov 3
- Revise your summary proposal
- Revised proposal due Tue Nov 10

Key dates

Complete for panelists

Submitted a summary proposal for Project 3 before your panel

Revised it, based on feedback from Chris

Written in your own words, except where quoting

Applied at least one named course concept to something actually said

Engaged live with a co-panelist's point, using course concepts

Not yet? Redo it

Borderline work defaults to redo

A redo is a next step, not a penalty.

Unlimited attempts

Same as Project 1. Keep going until it's Complete.

Redo = revise your proposal again

No re-recording. Still on Redo at Nov 27? Your Project 3 annotation covers it.

Complete, or not yet?

"Great points, I totally agree with everything you said!"

B

"When you said the province 'has been forced to respond,' nobody is doing the forcing. Who's the hidden actor?"

C

"The interpersonal metafunction is really present in this discussion."

D

"You hedged a lot ('maybe,' 'kind of') on decriminalization. That low modality makes your strongest point sound optional."

Imagine each one said live, by a panelist to a co-panelist. Invented examples, for practice only.
